

Meet some Instruments

Meet the piano

Each note of the piano is attached to a string and each string is attached to a hammer, so we can call a piano a percussion instrument and a string instrument!

The volume of the piano ranges from the softest sound to a mighty resounding sound.

Its little sister is called the upright Piano but its shape is more like a cabinet or a wardrobe and the sound of an upright piano is far softer.

